TRUST STATEMENT

The Public Sector Equality Duty (PSED), requires schools to consider how their policies, practices and day-to-day activities impact staff and learners (including prospective staff and pupils and in some circumstances former staff and learners) with regard to their protected characteristics: age, marriage and civil partnership (in relation to staff only) and race, sex, gender reassignment, sexual orientation, pregnancy and maternity and religion or belief including lack of belief.

At Changing Lives Learning Trust (the Trust), we are committed to ensuring equality of education and opportunity for all learners, staff, parents and carers receiving services from our academies, irrespective of any legally protected characteristic or their socio-economic background e.g. learners from low income families, Children Looked After, those with Child Protection plans, young carers and those with English as an additional language and to showing that we have due regard for the need to:

- Eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation and other conduct that is prohibited by the Equality Act
- Advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it
- Foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not.

We aim to develop a culture of inclusion and diversity in which all those connected to our Trust feel proud of their identity and can participate fully in school life. To do this we look to remove barriers and we look to achieve equality for all in everything the Trust does from setting policy and implementing procedures to teaching practice, recruitment and budget allocation which means sometimes we treat people differently because they have different needs.

We will work to:

- Remove or minimise disadvantages;
- Take steps to meet different needs;
- Encourage participation when it is disproportionately low.

The achievement of learners will be monitored according to any relevant protected characteristic that we might be reasonably expected to know they have and their socio-economic background and we will use this data, within the law and in accordance with General Data Protection Regulations to support learners, raise standards and ensure inclusivity.

We will tackle discrimination by promoting equality, challenging bullying and stereotypes and creating school environments which champion respect for all. We believe that diversity is a strength which should be respected and celebrated by all those who learn, teach and visit our academies.

We will publish information to demonstrate how we are complying with the Equality Duty annually.

1. AIMS OF THE SINGLE EQUALITY SCHEME

- To describe the Trust's commitment to equality throughout all Trust and academy policies and practices.
- To help us ensure that everyone who belongs to, or comes into contact with, our academies' communities are valued and respected.
- To promote equality of opportunity and eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment or victimisation.
- To comply with statutory duties under equalities legislation in one document.

2. PURPOSE

To achieve our vision and comply with our legal duties under the Equality Act 2010 we will:

- recognise, respect and celebrate diversity
- foster positive attitudes and relationships and a shared sense of belonging, aiming to reduce and remove existing inequalities and barriers
- ensure our curriculums are broad and balanced and provide opportunities for all our children and young people and promote understanding between different groups of people, cultures and societies
- promote British values through our curriculum to support the development of our children and young people into responsible citizens of the future
- demonstrate our commitment to equality and diversity through Trust policies, procedures, communications and our culture
- not discriminate against anyone on the grounds of their gender, sexual identity, race, age, colour, religion and belief, nationality, ethnicity, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, or physical or mental ability
- promote equality of opportunity, including staff recruitment, retention and development
- create an environment where everyone is able to reach their full potential
- making reasonable adjustments where necessary
- consult and involve all our key stakeholders
- strive to ensure that our community and wider society will benefit

3. PLANNING TO ELIMINATE DISCRIMINATION & PROMOTE EQUALITY OF OPPORTUNITY

Each academy will create an Action Plan which identifies what they will be doing over the coming year and beyond to make our schools more accessible to the whole community, irrespective of background or need.

They also have an Accessibility Plan which specifically focuses on improving equality of access to education for learners with disabilities, to work for employees with disabilities, and to work or a family life for visitors and other members of our school community with needs that we must make reasonable adjustments for (reasonable and proportionate steps to overcome barriers that may impede some people), alongside other protected groups. We publish them together, on the Trust and academies' websites, because they overlap and we want to make sure we are meeting our duties to promote positive outcomes in relation to disability, and actions to address other social identities.

Progress towards the objectives and the Accessibility Plan is reported on regularly to the Trust Board and Academy Boards and reviewed annually. Each academy will produce an annually updated Information Report about diversity in our academies and how they are doing against their Equality Objectives. Progress report submission and annual information reviews will take place at the first meeting of the new academic year.

We take steps to ensure our Single Equality Information report and our objectives are understood and implemented by all staff. These are also published on the academies' websites and available in different formats and different languages on request.

We also publish anonymous information about our workforce in line with the Public Sector Equality Duty (PSED) and the expectations of the Equalities and Human Rights Commission as follows:

- the race, disability, gender, and age distribution of our workforce at different grades, and whether they are full or part time;
- an indication of the likely representation on sexual orientation and religion and belief, provided that no-one can be identified as a result;
- an indication of any issues for transgender staff, based on engagement with those staff or equality organisations;

- gender pay gap information;
- information about occupational segregation;
- grievance and dismissal information for people with relevant protected characteristics;
- complaints about discrimination and other prohibited conduct from staff;
- details and feedback of engagement with staff and trade unions;
- quantitative and qualitative research with employees e.g. staff surveys;
- records of how we have had due regard to the aims of the duty in decision making with regard to our employment, including any assessments of impact on equality and any evidence used; and
- details of policies and programmes that have been put into place to address equality concerns raised by staff and trade unions.

Some Frequently Asked Questions

What is an equality impact assessment (EqIAs)?

To enable children or young people within your academies community to be treated fairly and equitably sometimes you have to treat them differently. In order to identify how best to do this you have to think ahead and predict how to best serve the needs of the different groups within your academy community. This is what equality impact assessment is all about.

Undertaking EqIAs is similar to undertaking health and safety risk assessments. It involves predicting and assessing what the implications of a policy or practice will be on a wide range of children or people with different and varied needs within your academy community and trying to ensure they are not disadvantaged by it.

Your academy community covers any person who is likely to use your academy. This means learners, parents, carers, staff, governors, volunteers and also visitors to your academy. It also covers anticipating the needs of possible future members of your academy community.

What is meant by 'impact'?

Two possible impacts are considered as part of the process:

A negative or adverse impact

This is an impact which could disadvantage one or more groups within your academy community. The disadvantage which is highlighted may be greater on one group than it is on another group.

For example:

- An open evening for learners and parents and carers which is held in rooms that are only accessible by stairs will prohibit anyone with a mobility issue from attending the meeting.

In some cases the disadvantage may be unavoidable – such as the reorganisation of a service to save money. EqIAs provide the opportunity to explore the disadvantage on different groups, question if the disadvantage is fair considering the circumstances and either find solutions or alternatives, or justify the decision in an open, transparent and informative way.

A positive impact

This is an impact that could be advantageous for one or more groups. This positive impact may be greater for one group than it is on another group.

For example:

- A targeted training programme aimed at developing women to be able to apply for leadership positions in secondary academies would have a positive impact on women but would not, however, necessarily disadvantage men.
- An intervention programme aimed at raising the attainment level of underachieving boys in English would have a positive impact on boys, but it would not necessarily disadvantage girls.

Identifying positive impact is a good way of promoting equality and to share good practice for example, between departments or year groups and academies.

Why should we undertake equality impact assessments?

Undertaking EqlAs is a legal requirement for academies under current race, disability and gender legislation. The purpose of the legislation is to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of public sector bodies, including academies, by anticipating the needs of service users and removing potentially anti-discriminatory practices. In the case of academies service users would include learners, staff, parents, carers, governors, volunteers and visitors – anybody within your academy's community.

In reality this means taking into account of the needs of your academies community in the development and review of any Academies policies and practices which are likely to affect them.

Undertaking EqlAs should not be a tick-box exercise. They should be considered a useful tool for mainstreaming equality into all our work. Services will improve through making improvements in the way policies are formulated and services delivered. This will enable barriers to be tackled and the needs of a diverse academies population to be met. Your academies community will also be aware that you are considering their needs at the planning stages.

What should be equality impact assessed?

You need to assess academies policies or practices which are likely to affect children or people within your academy community.

Written policies may be easy to identify but EqlAs also apply to practices and customary ways of doing things, even if they are not written down (e.g. arrangements for parent consultation events, arrangements for student extra-curricular activities).

In accordance with legislative requirements, an EqlA must be carried out on all policies and practices whether they are existing, being changed or are being proposed.

It is also important to remember that this includes proposals to changes in organisation structures, budget proposals and capital projects.

For example:

- Impact on workforce of organisational change
All staff should be treated fairly and equitably through any proposed change to the workforce. You may need to consider whether any groups of staff will be adversely affected by the proposed change. It is also important to be aware of the outcome of any change on the workforce profile. You may need to address any identified under-representation in the workforce profile as part of any future recruitment activity.

Ensure the EqlA process includes the recruitment, selection and appointment procedures for staff.
- Impact on service provision
If there is likely to be an impact on the way a service is provided as a result of any organisational change, you then need to ensure your EqlA considers the proposed changes in relation to how your academy community will be affected and whether any negative impact can be justified.

What equality strands/groups should be covered by EqlAs?

Some groups may experience disadvantage, whether intentional or not as a result of characteristics specific to that group. These characteristics are known as equality strands. It is common practice to identify the characteristics into nine groups:

- Disability
- Gender
- Race

- Religion and/or belief
- Age (in relation to staff recruitment /selection)
- Sexual orientation
- Gender reassignment
- Pregnancy and maternity
- Marriage and Civil Partnership

Who is responsible for carrying out equality impact assessments?

The person(s) who holds responsibility for the policy is ultimately responsible for ensuring an EqIA is undertaken. The EqIA may be done in conjunction with or by a person who knows that particular area of work.

It may be helpful to have a team of people who can help with the process. Try to get a mix of staff at different levels to get different perspectives. Ensure that they have enough knowledge of the area being assessed to make valid judgements.

To ensure ownership at the most senior level all EqIAs should be signed off by a member of the senior management team and a member of the governing body.

When should policies/procedures be equality impact assessed?

All existing policies and practices should be reviewed on a three-year rolling programme. It can be done in conjunction with the three-year cycle of your own equality scheme.

By undertaking a policy mapping exercise, you can prioritise which policies and practices have a higher priority for EqIAs based on their likely proportionate impact.

To make sure that decision makers are provided full and clear information about policy or service implications, all new or proposed policies or practices should have an EqIA before they are implemented.

What happens as a result of an EqIA?

If any potential adverse impact is identified, then policies and practices may have to be made amended as a result. If any adverse impact could amount to unlawful discrimination the policy or practice must be changed unless there is an objective, lawful reason to justify this.

The results of EqIAs can be used to set equality objectives leading to improvement in services and practices. These should be placed within your equality action plan(s), for example ensuring relevant Academies policies can be made available in alternative formats, as required.

Do I have to do a separate EqIA for every similar policy?

No – in fact it makes sense to review all similar policies together as part of an overall review. What you are looking for is how those different policies, as well as the way the policy is delivered in practice, are affecting different groups within your Academies community. If you think it would be more manageable to review a large policy or policy framework on its own then you can complete a separate EqIA – whatever makes the process manageable and meaningful for your academies.

Do I need to do an EqIA on an adopted policy?

No - you don't need to repeat an EqIA on an adopted policy which has already been assessed as long as any amendments you have made would not result in a different impact. If there are any doubts as to whether the policy has been assessed, then the best route is to do your own EqIA.

Where can I obtain further information?

Further guidance about undertaking equality impact assessments can be found at the Commission for Equality and Human rights website: www.equalityhumanrights.com or the DfE via Gov.UK: https://www.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/315587/Equality_Act_Advice_Final.pdf
